Located at 1328 West Morse Avenue, Mayne Stage is a historic jewel of Rogers Park community, on Chicago’s north side. The venue opened in 1912 as a theatre and movie house. In the 1930s, the facility was remodeled using an Art Deco theme and renamed the Co-Ed Theater because of its proximity to Loyola University. The Co-Ed closed in 1954, and from 1956 until 2008, the building served in various capacities from synagogue to a shoe repair store. Mayne stage experienced major renovations through 2010, modernizing the building but maintaining its historical integrity and 1930's-era art deco splendor. The beautiful mixed-use space that can now accommodate 220 seated or 275 standing guests, or each area can be rented separately.

- Mezzanine – This space can accommodate 50 seating or up to 75 standing guests. It offers a non-obstructed view of the stage and the ground floor, and includes a built-in-bar, dark wood accents. This space is ideal for a cocktail reception, VIP dinner, break-out sessions or New Year’s celebration.

- Theatre Space – The Theatre space includes the stage plus the ground floor. The stage serves as an ideal spot for photos while the ground floor makes the perfect dance floor that will have guests dancing the entire party. The space is utilized for weddings, fundraisers and corporate events, and offers generous space for meetings and team building activities. The ground floor can accommodate up to 50 guests. When combined with the other spaces, the theatre space makes for unforgettable performances, seminars, video parties and presentations.
- Living Room – Located on the third-level, this airy room provides the perfect bridal dressing room for up to 35 guests. It also serves as a retreat or back-of-house space for anyone needing a relaxing refuge or additional storage when using the Theatre Space and/or Mezzanine. The living room space can be booked individually or in combination. When booked individually, this space is welcoming for small private parties, meetings and more intimate holiday gatherings.
